Five nonprofit organizations in San Bernardino received more than $139,000 from the philanthropic arm of Verizon this week.

The recipients were given grants for education, domestic violence and health care initiatives.

In 2009 alone, the Verizon Foundation awarded more than $67.5 million in grants to nonprofit agencies in the United States and abroad.

The St. Bernardine Medical Center Foundation received $45,000 to start a new telemedicine program, Improving Health Care in the Community, which will reduce the number of patients who use emergency rooms for nonemergency care. The money will be used for training, software and equipment packages, and community outreach.

Catholic Charities is going to expand its Family and Community case management in San Bernardino County with a $24,500 grant. The money will target women and children who are recovering victims of domestic violence and at risk for homelessness.

The Children's Resource Network Center received $20,500 for its After School Literacy Program. The program provides tutoring and mentoring services to approximately 250 teenagers in math and reading comprehension.

Another Way will get 20 additional assistive technology devices at the Assistive Technology Library for the Developmentally Disabled Project at the Inland Regional Center with a $24,500 grant.

Libreria Del Pueblo Inc. received $24,500 to create eight neighborhood networks that will provide 200 low-income, underserved, Hispanic-speaking adults with technology-based Educational Sessions to help increase computer usage and ESL sessions to promote the use of the English language, self-esteem and employment.
